A Random Autobiography

I love Mexican food and once ate 21 burritos in 19 consecutive days when I was in college.

I walked right past a grizzly bear in Alaska but didn't see it on the other side of a big rock; all my friends did, however, as they watched from 100 yards up the mountain.

One of my best friends in the whole world is Mr. Sandwina.

I was a Deadhead when I was younger and saw the Grateful Dead perform over 60 times.

My sister is a British citizen and is the reason I'm a Tottenham Hotspurs fan.

I believe that all people are born completely good, but we have hurts that never got to heal and that's where all human badness comes from.

I proposed to my wife accidentally; fortunately, she purposely said yes!

I have ridden over 25,000 miles on my bike; it's my favorite way to travel.

My favorite bands right now are Kasabian, Oasis, and Nada Surf.

I like to sing songs in class, but I get nervous every time thinking that students won't like it or that I'll mess up on the guitar.

Whenever I read a book, I imagine what I would do if I were one of the characters.

My Mom is my hero: she's a cancer survivor, a recovered alcoholic, an 86-year-old woman who acts like she's 50, and has both an iron will and a kind personality.

I loved running when I was in middle school and high school; unfortunately, my knees cannot take the pounding anymore so I've had to give it up.

I swam with reef sharks in Belize.

My first concert was the Rolling Stones at Candlestick Park in 1981.

I found a scorpion in my bed and four spiders on the wall in my cheap hotel in Guatemala, yet I emerged unharmed.

Before last year, I had long hair (very long – it went to my waist) for 28 years.

It might sound cheesy, but I love teaching and can't imagine having any other profession.
